Early exit for Li-Lo

LINDSAY Lohan has been released from her drug-and-alcohol rehab centre after serving only 23 days of her 90-day program. RadarOnline reports that Lindsay's departure from the UCLA Medical Centre was part of a careful plan to avoid media attention. The celebrity website reported details of a three-car decoy that whisked her out of the centre's back door and out of sight of paparazzi. RadarOnline said that in her first moments of freedom, she called her mother Dina. The move came after the troubled actress signed discharge papers, paving the way for her early release from the in-patient treatment program. She is expected to receive outpatient care instead. Lawyers for the actress, 24, were expected in court today, when the judge overseeing her case will deliver an unspecified ruling.

Mama's rising star

DANIELLE Caruana AKA Mama Kin is no stranger to music. Growing up in a musical family and marrying one of Australia's biggest roots stars John Butler, she's now making her voice heard with her exciting debut album Beat and Holler and national tour supporting The Cat Empire, arriving in Adelaide next week.

"It's great to think people are buying my music and listening to it without me forcing it on them after a gig," she laughs. "Sharing music is a really confronting process for me."

But it almost didn't happen for Danielle who only gathered the courage to pursue music through "a huge personal journey". "I've only chosen music quite recently," she explains.

"One of the turning points I guess was explaining to my daughter about being courageous in life and being creative and I realised I was giving her all these messages and in reality I wasn't ready to do any of that."

Now with mum and dad both touring Australia, Danielle tells Confidential at times it can get difficult.

"We'll probably be ships in the night quite often there's times when we'll both be away and take the kids away. We've truly embraced the fact that we're carney folk!" - Sam Kelton

Kelly sees Scott in peek at bub

ADELAIDE Now presenter Kelly Nestor looked into the face of her baby boy for the first time, and saw a mini-me of her partner.

At 29-and-a-half weeks pregnant, Kelly, with father-to-be Scott Matthews watching on, underwent a non-invasive 4D ultrasound at Sound Diagnostic Radiology on Fullarton Rd in Parkside yesterday to see what their baby looks like.

"He has Scott's nose, big beautiful lips and forehead. I can't get over it. He's so beautiful," she says.

The cutting edge technology uses sound waves to deliver a detailed three-dimensional image which is much more advanced from the two-dimensional versions seen at most hospitals or radiology centres.

You can see Kelly and Scott's baby boy up close and personal in a series of photographs and a movie on adelaidenow.com.au.
